WOODEN TEXTILE / PLAID

„Wooden Textiles“ convey a new tactile experience. We are used to experience wood as a hard material; we know the feeling of walking across wooden floors, to touch a wooden tabletop or to feel the bark of a tree. But we usually don't experience a wooden surface which can be manipulated by touch.

The wooden textiles /plaids can be a sculptural element for the home, a bed-cover, a warming blanket, a textile-like shelter.....

The process to design a flexible wooden surface is its deconstruction into pieces, which are then attached to a textile base.

Depending on the weight and stiffness each surface shows a different behaviour.

The wood is cut by laser cut, and all tiles are stuck by hand to compose a textile-like surface.

„Wooden Textiles“ is an approach to responsible thinking concerning lifecycles of products.

In the future we will have to deal with more waste and less resources. Therefore it is fundamental to be aware about lifecycles of objects. That means to use material that is able to grow old beautifully.

Also it is crucial to aim for a closer relationship between subject and object. This can be achieved through more flexibility and changeability, the possibility of growth or surprising elements.
